Wood and Woods.

So many inquiries have been received about the name Wood that we are giving our readers all that we know about this family.

An old land patent records that to Captain John Wood was granted, by order of court, January 4, 1635, 650 acres of the county of James, beginning at Sandy Point on the main river.

A very fair situation did Captain John Wood choose for a habitation. Sandy Point is across the James from Claremont, just fifty-seven miles from Richmond. The Lightfoot settled here in the latter part of the seventeenth century, and their handsome manor, Teddington, built in 1717, stands today, and the plantation contained 4,300 acres. All who wish to know something of "old times" must read Charles Campbell's account of a Christmas at Teddington, published in the Southern Literary Messenger.

The line, however, from John Wood, this "ancient planter," to others of the name in Virginia is not plain; we wish it were. It is pleasant to go back a long way to a forbear, to whom distance always lends a certain rare enchantment. "Every-day" folk are taken with a grain of salt, but "back-lations" (as a good old darkey called ancestors) are taken just so, and endowed frequently with qualities which would mystify the dear souls could they rise from their dust.

There seem to be several families of Wood in Virginia and several are very indistinct. In our sequence embracing the families of distinguished Virginians we have now come to Light-horse Harry Lee, who succeeded Patrick Henry, Thomas Nelson and Benjamin Harrison, but there has so lately been given in other publications exhaustive genealogies of these families that we deem it best to skip them for the present, taking them up later if we find interesting data, which is not generally known. Therefore, we are ready to go to James Wood, Governor of Virginia, and as many wish to know something of his family, we give all that we can find.

James Wood, Gentlemen, in 1752, surveyed and laid out a parcel of land at the courthouse in Frederick county, into twenty-six lots of a half acre each for a town and called it Winchester. He had three sons, John (3), James (2) and Robert (2). James (2) was born in 1750. He was a member of the Convention of 1776, was colonel in the Virginia line, rendering gallant service, was member of the State Council, and in 1796 was elected Governor of Virginia.

During his administration two momentous events occurred. Patrick Henry died in June, 1787, and Washington in December of the same year. When James Wood went out of office he was made brigadier-general of State troops, and was also made commander of the Virginia Order of the Cincinnati. The county of Wood was named for him. He married a Miss Montague, and left one daughter, who died unmarried at the age of twenty. John (3) Wood left Winchester when a very young man, and settled in Botetourt.

I can find nothing further of him. Robert (2) Wood, the youngest son, remained in Winchester, married and had children, and his grandson, William Wood Glass, occupied his old home, "Glenbonnie," near Winchester, in 1902.

The first of this line is said to have come over with Alexander Spotswood. He settled in the Shenandoah Valley, and gave the site for the city of Winchester. Being a member of the Convention of 1776 would entitle any descendant of James Wood to membership in the Colonial Dames or Colonial Wars, and as an officer in the Revolution and president of the Cincinnati he could leave to his children the privilege of joining either of these societies; but as his granddaughter died unmarried, these honors go begging.

The Henry Wood Family.

Henry Wood was born in London in 1696. He arrived in Yorktown in 1713, and afterwards lived with Christopher Robinson, son of the Ippahannock River. He later went over to Henric county, and took his place in good society. William (3) Cooke was then lord of Brems. Henry Wood visited that historic place, fell in love with his daughter Martha, who married him, and they removed to Goodland county. The first paper filed in the county records of Goodland is Henry Wood's commission as clerk of that county. He is described as "a person of good education, strong natural parts and great vivacity of temper." He was clerk of Goodland county from 1728 to 1757. He lived at an estate in Goodland called "Woodville," was buried there, and a handsome tomb marks his grave. He had Valentine Wood (2), who married Lucy, daughter of Patrick Henry. He succeeded his father as clerk of Goodland. This office of clerk ran in certain families. In Essex the Micous were clerks for generations, and there are several such instances in other counties. The son helped the father, and were better fitted than any outsider to fill his place. Mrs. Valentine Wood had the intellect of the Robertsons and Winstons, and her piety, increased by constant contact with the Rev. Samuel Davies, was of no lukewarm order. Their children were Henry (2), who died unmarried; Martha (3), married Major Stephen Southall, of Henrico; Mary (3), married Peter Johnston, and Gen. Joseph E. Johnston was her son and Dr. George Ben Johnston, of Richmond, her grandson; Valentine (3), died unmarried; Lucy (3), married Edward Carter, of Blenheim; and John Henry (3), married Elizabeth Spencer.

Henry (1) Wood had also Sally (2) and Patty (2), besides other children who died in infancy.

Sally (2) Wood married William Pryor, and had Samuel (3), William (3) and John (3), and daughters Sally (1), Patty (3) and Mary (3).

Patty (2) Wood married William Meriwether.

They had children, one of whom was David Wood Meriwether, who married Mary, the daughter of John Lewis. He was one of the most eminent members of the Kentucky bar. William Meriwether, the husband of Patty Wood, was son of David Meriwether, who was son of Major Nicholas Meriwether and Elizabeth Woodhouse.

Woodhouse is an old name found in Princess Anne county, and much concerning it can be found in the "Lower Norfolk County Antiquary." Henry the father of Elizabeth Woodhouse, was son of Henry Woodhouse, who died in 1655. Henry Woodhouse was son of Henry Woodhouse, Governor of Bermuda 1623-1626, and the Governor of Bermuda was son of Sir Henry Woodhouse, of "Waxam," Norfolk, England.

The father of Henry Wood, first clerk of Goodland, was Valentine Wood, of England, whose wife's name was Rachel. So we have another family whose English connection is certain.

THE LONG DISTANCE BELL TELEPHONE REACHES ALL THE IMPORTANT POINTS

You Can Talk From Your Home or Office to Almost Any City.

ALL TOLL RATES ARE REASONABLE

Map of Virginia, Showing a Few Important Points Reached by the Long Distance Bell Telephone and Giving the Rate for a Three-Minute Talk.

The Long Distance Bell Telephone is playing an important part in revolutionizing modern business methods. It is used constantly between distant points for business and social purposes, and the Bell System is so extensive and so well maintained that a business transaction is cheaper, more satisfactory and accomplished in less time than by any other method. The Bell System reaches all important points in Virginia and throughout the country.

You can sit in your home or office and talk to any one in a city, far or near; a convenience which no other agency affords. The points shown on the accompanying map are only a few of those in constant telephonic communication with Richmond. The rates given are for a three-minute talk. To secure other rates call "Long Distance."

Amherst," leaves out some dates that I can furnish, though he is remarkably correct in the dates given.

Sarah Floyd, who married Wyatt Powell, was born June 12, 1747. They were married June 17, 1768.

Nancy Floyd Powell, daughter of the above, married Robert Walker, of Amherst (he was not a doctor as Mr. Robertson has it), May 1, 1792. Their children who married and had issue are as follows: Peter Walker moved to Tusculum, Ala.; was judge of the Supreme Court of Alabama; has three granddaughters living in Washington, D. C. Misses Kate, Jennie and Annie Mattingly. There may be other descendants in Alabama. Thomas Walker had one son who died when a young man. Sallie Walker married Dr. Harry Rose, had three children—Fitzhugh, Harry and Nannie. Harry was killed in the war; Fitzhugh died since the war. He never married. Nannie married Paul Cabell, of Amherst, and had three children—Rose, who married John L. Lee, Henry and Carrington. Mrs. Cabell, Mrs. Lee and Henry are dead.

Ajax, the eldest son of Robert Walker and Nancy Floyd Powell, was born November 15, 1794, graduated in medicine in Philadelphia and moved to Milton, N. C., where he married on May 20, 1820, Lucy Meriwether Lewis and had children—follows who married and had issue: Nicholas Lewis Walker, who married Emily Francis Hunt. Their children were: Lewis, Lucy Lewis, Robert Lewis, Edward Hunt, William Hunt and Jonas Lewis.

Lewis Walker married Sue Cunningham. Lucy is unmarried. Robert married Cornelia Wilson and lives in Milton, N. C. Milton married Mrs. Lockie White and lives in Henderson, Ky. Milton married Kate Dibre and lives in Raleigh, where his widow and children now live. Nicholas married and lives in Texas.

Second. Henry Ajax Walker married Mary McCotta Owens, both of whom are dead. They left one son, John Owens Walker, who lives in Memphis, Tenn.

Third, Fielding Lewis Walker, who married Penelope Campbell Wilson, lives in Danville, Va., and their children are as follows: Lewis Meriwether Lewis, married L. P. Morgan; Penelope Wilson, married William H. Jones. These and Lewis Meriwether, Charles Baylor, Mary Wilson, Agnes Campbell, Matland and Annie Louise live in Danville, Va. Henry Ajax married Ida Thames, of Mobile, Ala., and lives in Louisville, Ky. Fielding Lewis married Mamie Dowd, of Durham, N. C., and lives in South Boston, Va.
